16th January, 1923.

I grieve to tell you that Miss Mason passed away in sleep at noon to-day.

She was taken ill before Christmas but had seemed to be on the way to recovery when on Saturday there was a heart attack which brought the end.

Our loss is great.

H. W. HOUSEHOLD.

Dear Mr Cripps

I have just read straight-through the wonderful S. African Diaries, and later in the day I hope to read them straight through again, making notes of what to read & what to summarise for the Council meeting on Tuesday. & of-something to say - if nobody else says it - at the meeting at University College on Monday afternoon.

In opportunity S. Africa has offered a better field than America. I thought it would. I was out there 14 or 15 years ago + I knew enough to realise what a god send the programmes would be to English parents in Dutch speaking districts with only Africans ~~sp~~ used in the schools, and to the scattered farms.

The record is a wonderful piece of testimony to Mrs Franklin's power of inspiring people + judgment in handling them + to her amazing appetite for work and endurance of fatigue. I saw them all in America + these diaries revive the old wonder and admiration.

America was too sophisticated, too well organised, too well satisfied, to be a wholly satisfactory seed bed for D.N.E.C. : but S. Africa is very backward indeed - an untilled soil.

I am full of joy.

With all good wishes for 1926

Yours sincerely

H. W. Houseman

You shall have the Diaries back on Tuesday.

Dear Mrs Franklin

I believe you land today.
If you do I am a day late with my welcome home & my warmest congratulations on your wonderful success.

My Cripps will show you what I said when I read those amazing diaries. I had intended to read large extracts from them to the Council last Tuesday, but the discussion of the plans for the new buildings was very long - not too long - and by 4.30 or a few minutes earlier when it terminated people began to drift away & it was too late to begin afresh.

But I understand they will appear in the P. R., and I hope at our July meeting you will be able to tell us yourself something of the tale & that by that time it may have a sequel.

It was delightful of you to send that Radio message. Unfortunately it missed the meeting & ultimately arrived here on the 8th by post, and my fellow members missed the thrill.

You will hear of the battle (friendly but vigorous) over Mr Fyfe's plans: how he wants to invade the level lawn at the side & how such a desecration is intolerable to

My Parish & My Kitchen Dr Webb. A Committee is to meet on the spot & consider all points of view. I have an entirely open mind, but I can see that the sanctities of today may have to give way to the sanctities (still to be created) of tomorrow - between Scale Hall the private house secluded, little known, inconvenient, uncomfortable, & a public college designed for the needs of 1950 - between spending nothing at all & spending £12000 - £15000.

Kindest regards

Yours very sincerely

P.S.

I have come to an end without ever thanking you for the most interesting & delightful letter that came about Christmas time - the diaries had overlaid it in my mind. Thank you so much for it & for the kind wishes that it brought.

I was very glad indeed to hear of Cyril's happiness & of your joy in it & I can well imagine how you will treasure up the delightful outpouring of his love & gratitude.

May his happiness be abundant & enduring.

I hope you come back rested by the voyage in the best of health & spirits

Dear Mr. Household,

At the Committee meeting yesterday we once again had to report your continued and valuable work for us. Your last article in the Teachers' World has already brought in forty-nine enquiries! We know full well that your work, like those of your colleagues, is done for the sake of the children as a service to the world, and to fit future citizens to play their part well.

The Committee feel that you are one of their most precious assets, and some of us were a little unhappy at seeing how much you were wearing yourself out, and how tired you looked. I suppose everyone looks a little ragged at the end of a long year. Holiday time is coming near, and I am instructed to ask you to allow us to help towards a really good and amusing holiday by begging you to accept the enclosed cheque. We hope you will look upon it, small as it is, as an outward sign of our appreciation and gratitude for all you are doing for the cause which we all have so much at heart.

Believe me,

Yours very sincerely,

Dear Mr Franklin

What am I to say to your amazing letter? That is not the right word, but how shall I find it? I know well that you & the Committee had kind thoughts for me. Have I not had abundant evidence? And already I owe so much to that most fortunate association - the few but very precious years of intercourse with Sir Adam, the new outlook, the experience, the delightful & informing visit to America & the weeks of close association with you, and the wonderful opportunity for my schools & their children bringing to them & their teachers a new joy & a new power. It is I who owe everything, and you write as though the debt were the other way.

Your letter & the splendid gift & the extraordinary kindness & care & regard behind them, prompting them, will be a delightful memory for me through the rest of my days. This is a year of wonderful kindness for good fortune, <sup>in many ways</sup> for me, and if Heaven will continue to smile the August holiday shall be one of my best, & I shall come back full of vigour & spirit to complete the next course in the joyous encounters with the public schools for prize.

My most grateful & still bewildered thanks to the Committee for their amazing generosity - and above all to you who thought of it & prompted it my warmest gratitude & deep regard.

always yours sincerely,

H. W. Householder
